NEW LIGHT THROWN ON BELOIT KILLING

Police Sift Black Hand and Vengeance for Trick at Cards as Cause for Italian Murder.

Two distinct angles confront Winnebago county, Illinois, and Beloit police departments in their effort to solve the exact cause for the assault on Frank Parace, Beloit, Ill., who died Friday night from 11 stiletto and knife wounds after a poker game just across the state line. Whether the killing was according to the code of the vendetta—the Mafia or Black Hand—or that it resulted from Parace's attempt to cheat was the cause of the vendetta. The cards, that his trick was exposed and that in anger his companions set upon him to avenge their wrath and murder his death, are the problems which confront the police.

Dan Sues Blackhand. Detective Dan Torricelli is strong in the belief that Parace was a victim of the Black Hand. He is not against these discoveries are the frenzied shouts of Parace in his delirium as the Beloit police first came upon the knife-wounded man. "Here's the knife-shedder. Here it is. Take it all. I don't want it. Don't cut me any more." This seems to counteract the Italian vendetta theory.

A post mortem held Saturday afternoon determined that death came from a fractured skull and three stiletto wounds. Parace suffered a fractured skull, behind the right ear. A piece of his skull was firmly imbedded in the brain. A stiletto, the other cause, the host of stiletto and knife wounds on his skull, arms and chest, were alone enough to terminate his life.

Inquest Thursday. Although the participants in the crime are in the Winnebago county jail, the inquest will be held in that state. The inquest will be held by Coroner Lynn A. Whaley of Rock county, Wisconsin. His jurisdiction enters in the case because Parace, although originally assaulted in Illinois, died in Wisconsin. The jury called by him Saturday will hold its inquest Thursday morning.

JEFFERSON COUNTY WAR VETS TO RALLY

Old soldiers of Jefferson county will have their annual reunion at Jackson, Thursday, August 19. Arrangements are in charge of E. B. Heimstreet, formerly of Janesville, president of the Jefferson county association of journeymen fitters and steamfitters' helpers at the 11th annual convention held in Kenosha, Saturday and Sunday.

WILL SHOOT CANINE WHICH BIT YOUTH

Ernest Benwitz, 535 South Franklin street, a Janesville delivery man, reported to the police that he had been bitten by a dog which he said belonged to a woman, 315 Fremont street. The police department said that the canine would be shot. A fifth ward girl this morning reported a vicious shaggy dog in the vicinity of Pearl street.

SAYS ROOMER TOOK HIS ROLL OF BILLS

Theft of $35 was reported to the police by Joseph Schilling, North Franklin street, who said it was taken from him by a roomer. Schilling, a rooming house operator, has furnished police with a complete description of him with a request to arrest him.

MAY PASS SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TONIGHT

Councilmen are expected to pass an ordinance tonight to issue bonds for $100,000 to replace the school fund with a view to carrying it through to the end of the year. This will doubtless be the most important item of business, although unexpected features may come up, as they usually do.

AIRPLANES AND GOOD ROADS ARE FEATURES OF C. OF C. LUNCHEON

Janesville as a possible airport for a trans-continental air service and better roads in Wisconsin featured the luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce held at the Grand hotel today. Representatives of neighboring business associations, guests of the luncheon were here to attend a conference on better passenger train service to Milwaukee. Following the dinner, conference on the railway situation went into session. Alfred Lawson, president of the Lawson Airlines, Inc., addressed the members on the possibilities of the heavier than air machine in transportation. He declared that his organization plans to commence a passenger and mail service between New York and Minneapolis, with Janesville as a way station, the first part of August.

The advisability of taking action by changing the state highway law to give the federal aid system in building roads was brought up by D. E. Mowry, manager of the Madison Chamber of Commerce.

LEOIT MAN KILLED; INQUEST ORDERED

Coroner Lynn A. Whaley was summoned to Beloit today to hold an inquest into the death of Edwin Stordock, 25, a Fairbanks-Morse workman, who on Saturday noon suffered a fractured skull and bruised legs when he was entangled in an apparatus used for starting motors and from the effects of which he died in Emergency hospital there this morning.

USUAL AUTO THEFT SATURDAY: 2 HELD

Youths Believed to Have Switched Tags on Stolen

The usual automobile theft took place Saturday night. Indications at the police station were that the thieves had been arrested.

Edward Engen, Orendville, in town with his family to shop, parked his car on South High near Academy. It was there at 9 o'clock but not at 10:45 when they returned to leave for home.

The police immediately got in communication with all nearby cities and at midnight Chief of Police Gilman of Evansville telephoned the city he had come upon an abandoned car wrecked outside the city with a corresponding engine number.

The license tags were different, however.

Following information Gilman went to Albany and is said to have arrested two youths, former employees of a Janesville plant. He was expected to arrive here with his prisoners late this afternoon.

RAIL CONFERENCE BRINGS MANY HERE

City and Town Boosters Registering Protest Today on Service to Milwaukee.

Representatives of surrounding towns and cities and of the two railway systems entering here, meeting this afternoon at the Grand Hotel to discuss widespread demand and the plans for improvement of the service between Janesville and Milwaukee and intermediate points.

Representatives at the meeting are W. W. Winton, district passenger agent, and A. W. Bower, district passenger agent, of the Chicago and Northwestern; R. Gehring, traffic clerk, Milwaukee Association of Commerce; George Gilling, manager, Waukesha Association of Commerce; J. G. Swift, city clerk, Burlington; Don E. Mowry, manager, Madison Association of Commerce; W. F. Moffet, president, Edgerton Chamber of Commerce; G. W. Perkins, chairman, Janesville chamber of commerce; and W. S. Perkins, chairman, Beloit chamber of commerce.

The session will in all probability do this since by it two to one vote his resignation was refused at a meeting of 300 church people held at the Baptist church yesterday.

Services in the Presbyterian church will be resumed on September 1.

W. H. Blair, member of the board of trustees for 26 years, was elected chairman of the meeting yesterday.

COAL FOR JANESVILLE.

In spite of all the effort and representations made to the different boards, commissions, coal companies, railroads and others there is still the same condition in reference to coal and a winter's coal supply for the northwest, including Janesville.

The coal situation here is at it was; no coal and none in sight. Coal is passing by and beyond us in small quantities to care for other sections equally as much in need. At the meeting of the Interstate Commerce commission the one suggestion made that seems to be at all valuable to Wisconsin, was by Carl D. Jackson, of the Wisconsin state railroad commission, who favored a car preference to coal mines with contracts to supply Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northern Michigan.

Canada is also crying for coal. It will take 17,000,000 tons to supply the market there, and the coal has heretofore come from the states.
One of the statements by the Canadian representative was that "Reduced shipments to Canada seem to indicate that American producers have neglected the Canadian market to take care of European demands."

Embargoes are dangerous and uneconomic and should only be made effective in great crises, but it would seem that now is the time to place such an embargo until there is an equitable distribution of coal to America. Statements that we have plenty of coal made before the Interstate commerce commission, only emphasize the fact that we are suffering from exceedingly bad management in coal distribution.

HOME BUILDING BY INDUSTRIAL CORPORATIONS.

News of building activities of the last week is of a better tone. Reports from banking concerns having close relations with construction work are to the effect that the next few years "will witness a tremendous amount of home building on the part of industrial corporations." The report is worth a place here because of the great interest of Janesville, where we are all acutely concerned.
In effecting the minimum of labor turnover and in fostering a broad spirit of loyalty, co-operation and contentment among the workers, the industrial corporations of the country will find that the development of home owning practices among their employes will do more practical good than any other expedient. When a man acquires his own home he feels, as never before, a sense of responsibility in the preservation of the orderly processes of business, and realizes with keen enthusiasm the stabilizing value of thrift and prudent habits of life.

"There are many indications that we are coming into a new order of life in America, which will mean radical innovations in industrial financing. Large employers of labor will be prompted more and more in their desires to cooperate with employes in building homes which shall be owned eventually by the workers. This new spirit will manifest itself in a tremendous amount of home building in all the large industrial centers of the country, during the ensuing few years."

WINNING THE WAR WITH SPURS, SADDLES AND NOSE BAGS.

When the government started in to do things there was no pinch penny method used in time of war. Having concluded to make the world safe for the democratic party and being totally unprepared, Mr. Baker's war department, by and with the consent of the whole administration, proceeded on the theory that the horse would win the war. If the horse couldn't do it then the horse fixin's would. So the administration went into the horse business on a big scale. While it bought and had in service only 86,418 cavalry horses, Mr. Baker and the war department proceeded to dole up those horses as horses have never before been doted. They purchased 11 saddles for each horse. Here is what the government got together for the cavalry which was not used at all in the fighting in France, and paid for out of the people's pockets:

945,000 saddles.
585,516 saddle bags.
1,637,100 horse brushes. Mr. Baker believed that one way to win the war was to keep the horses shiny and sleek even if they were not in battle.

2,033,204 nose bags.
1,145,304 horse covers.
8,751,516 horseshoes.

105,000 branding irons.

For the Ordnance department, (the department handling the artillery) Mr.
Baker purchased 38 sets of spurs for each officer including the swivel chair brigade at Washington.

The total number of horses owned and used by the government in every branch of services was 550,182 and there was bought and paid for by the men and women who sacrificed to buy Liberty bonds enough equipment for a million animals. We sent overseas 67,498 horses. Of the total number owned 96,000 died. But there was shipped overseas enough equipment for all the horses—dray, ordnance, plugs, garbage haulers, and those which never felt a collar or wore a saddle in the United States. There these saddles and horse covers and nose bags, have rotted or been sold for a song to French junk dealers.

The San Francisco platform says the democratic party won the war. But the people paid for it with a riot of extravagance and a madness of money-spending never equalled.

The platform of the vets: "I'd rather be tight than be president."

Cleveland Coal

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cleveland, Ohio, July 12.—Cleveland is again preparing to go into the coal business. A new fuel office has been appointed by the mayor at the suggestion of the city council, and arrangements are being made for the establishment of a municipal coal pile, to be opened for the benefit of the public on September 1. When the coal is ready and the price of coal soars above fifteen dollars per ton, as everybody predicts it will, Cleveland is going to furnish coal to householders at cost, plus the expense of delivery.

Cleveland is within eighty miles of one of the largest coal mining districts in the country, and yet it is now suffering from an acute coal shortage.
The reason advanced by coal dealers is that the railroads will not provide enough cars to transport the coal from the mines. They also claim that strikes among the miners have prevented a normal production of coal which will result in an actual shortage during the coming winter.

This seems to be considered sufficient excuse for immediately raising the price of coal—at least by the coal dealers. But neither the city authorities of Cleveland nor the United States attorney general, Mr. Palmer, agrees with them.

Indeed, the latter disagrees so forcibly with the coal dealers that he has ordered a state-wide investigation of coal prices and the prosecution of operators who charge more than $2.75 a ton for the bituminous product. According to him, the wholesale and retail dealers in coal are guilty of circulating deliberate propaganda concerning a coal shortage in order to boost fuel prices.

"The production of coal has been hampered," he admits, "but there is no serious shortage. Dealers are circulating exaggerated claims in the hope of creating false prices. More coal was mined during the first four months of 1920 than during any similar period in the history of the country." In ordering prosecutions under the Lever Act, Mr. Palmer explained that during the month of April, with the production cost of coal at $2.75 a ton, coal dealers sold the product at $3 and $4 a ton. Since then, the price has been forced up as high as $7 and $11 a ton. Indeed, if Mr. Palmer only knew it, the price of coal in Cleveland and Cincinnati is much higher than that.

Cleveland, moreover, is not cheered by Mr.
Palmer's sanguine belief that the investigation of coal prices by the agents of the department of justice is creating false prices. More coal was mined during the first four months of 1920 than during
any similar period in the history of the country."

Cincinnati is much higher than that.

Anyways, Cleveland and Cincinnati are in a fix, and the situation of the fuel difficulty in its own way, with apologies to the local coal dealers. It is preparing to have a coal yard, to fill it with about 6,000 tons of coal, and dispose of it frugally in small stacks or in one-ton loads at the most to individual families. In taking this important step, the city authorities are not only trying to ease the fuel difficulty, but they are also trying to ease the fuel difficulty. It is preparing to have a coal yard, to fill it with about 6,000 tons of coal, and dispose of it frugally in small stacks or in one-ton loads at the most to individual families. In taking this important step, the city authorities are not only trying to ease the fuel difficulty, but they are also trying to ease the fuel difficulty.

This municipal antipathy to public suffering, it may be added parenthetically, originated several years ago during the administration of Mayor Davis, according to the fuel official who explained the Cleveland coal plan to us. It was this year that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered.
It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered. It was then that the Cleveland coal plan was first considered.

Hence, this is not the first time that a mayor of Cleveland has ordered the establishment of a municipal coal pile. The first one was created three years ago when the big war shortage of coal occurred and the municipality decided to buy coal direct from the mines for its own use.
Until then, each separate department of the city government had arranged for its own supply of coal, but at this time a coal commission was created to buy coal for all of the departments, thereby saving, as it later transpired, hundreds of thousands of dollars. Some of this saving was due to the fact that the unloading of the coal from the cars was done with prison labor, and the city used its ash trucks for delivery purposes.

As the householders of Cleveland at this time were suffering from the double calamity of a coal shortage and influenza, the city authorities decided that they would simply increase their purchase of coal and sell it to everyone who needed it. They sold it at cost and had the ash trucks deliver it whenever possible to the poor people who flocked to the coal pile like hundreds carried it away in small sacks slung over their backs, or on sleds or in children's wagons.

This year, the city plans to conserve its own energies by entering into contract with a building concern for the storing and delivery of coal. The householder desiring to purchase his supply of fuel from the city will call at the city hall and receive a written order for coal, which he will then present to the building concern. No coal will be permitted to leave the yard of this concern without this written order.

Whether or not the situation will be sufficiently desperate by September to warrant such proceedings is a matter which cannot be foretold.
Cleveland does not particularly want to go into the coal business, and it hopes it won't have to.
But it is prepared for the worst.

There are 400,000 employees of the government, swivel-chair hold-overs from the war, who are fighting to keep their jobs. They know that with the republicans in power in congress and a republican president their sinecures are gone. There are more of these feeders at the pie counter than there are republican votes in Wisconsin.

The Janesville masher is again busy. Several places on the prominent streets are his habitat.
A night in a cell at the police station and a snappy fine is about the best lesson for these parasites.
Along with the fly and other pests the city should seek that the masher is swatted.

There is no uncertainty about the newspaper of Mr. Cox giving him unqualified support. Also Mr. Harding's paper will support the republican ticket. That much at least is settled.

Apparently Mr. Hearst was not so strong with Big Bill Thompson as he anticipated for the Chicago mayor has agreed to let by-gones remain and support Harding and Coolidge.

Nearly every one of the "lams" in the Wisconsin bolshevik platforms have been imported.
They paid no duty at the port of admission, being worthless.

This movement to feed cows on sawdust in the interests of the lumber mills of Wisconsin? Will we have a new breed of cattle with wooden legs?

A FATHER'S THOUGHT.

What do I want my boy to be?
Oh, is the question asked of me, And oft I ask it of myself—
"What corner, niche, or post or shelf In the great hall of life would I select for him?—a Statesman or Statesman or writer, poet, sage Or toiler for a weekly wage, Artist or artisan? Oh, what a dilemma! He is so young, For him I do not dare to plan, I only hope he'll be a man."

I leave it free for him to choose The tools of life which he shall use, Brush, pen or chisel, lathe or wrench,
The desk of commerce or the bench,
And pray that when he makes his choice In each day's task he shall rejoice.
I know somewhere there is a need For him to labor and succeed; Somewhere, if he be true and true, Loyal and honest through and through,
He shall be fit for any clan,
And so I hope he'll be a man."

I would not build my hope or ask That he should do some certain task, Or bend his will to suit my own,
He shall select his own domain, Life needs a thousand kinds of men, Toilers and masters of the pen, Doctors, mechanics, sturdy hands
To do the work which life commands,
And whosoever's deeds are pleased to go, Honor and triumph he may know.
Therefore, I must do all I can
To give my boy to be a man.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

I LIKE IT.
Some people are about the heat.
I like it.
When you can fry eggs in the street,
I like it.
Some people like humidity.
To do the work which life commands,
But it's the proper stuff for me.
I like it.
When it's a hot day in the shade,
I like it.
For me that sort of weather's made.
I like it.
I love the sun and a fiery kiss.
It is the essence of all bliss.
I often write dainties like this.
I like it.

An astrologer has decided that Elwell's murderer was a man who knew how to discharge a revolver. Well, the police had got that far.

In the bout between High Cost of Living and Summer Furs, Summer Furs seem to have won the first round.

SOUNDS LIKE HASHIMURA'S WORK.
Rule 2 for motorists in Japan runs as follows:
"When a passenger of the foot heave in sight, teeth the horn trumpet, and the horn trumpet to the horn trumpet, and the horn trumpet to him with vigor and express by word of mouth the warning: 'Hi! Hi!'"

WHAT'S THE MATTER? WHAT'S THE MATTER? WHAT'S THE MATTER?
(Rupert Hughes, in the Cosmopolitan.) "O Lord, let me smash him once. I've got to beat his death. I've got to beat his death."
Just once.

Who's Who Today

PREMIER GIOLITTI.
It must be incredible to foreigners that Giovanni Giolitti, whom Italians branded as a traitor five years ago, and who then barely escaped with his life from the chair of the executive, should now be welcomed back to power, not only with no sign of resignation, but even with expressions of joy. He still believes in the addition of faith that the alone can rescue the country from its loss of prestige abroad and its economic and political chaos at home.

The political opponents of that aged statesman would now seem to have joined his followers of non-intervention and defeatism. All feared or hoped, as the case might be, that he would come back but not until the immediate con-

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF A BABY—27

Cholera infantum I had just reached this question of cholera infantum in my last talk when the sandman arrived. He gets to my house at 6:30 p. in every night without fail, and when I hear him calling me I beat it for the hay, because my dad says he can't be professionally responsible for little boys who act like night owls.

The cholera infantum is getting passer is considered bad form in intelligent, clean households. Father says a doctor encounters it nowadays among the uneducated and the poor in our city slums and the ignorant rural population. Yes, father says and mothers and fathers and physical sees in the country sometimes equals anything the meanest holes in the city can conceal. Physicians, regularly meet with instances in which ignorant mothers living right on farms with cows' milk freely available deliberately discard the milk and substitute some wretched propi-etary substitute merely because they fear the "cheat food" (agrees) or because they think it is easier to prepare for the baby. Thank goodness, though, we kids are receiving more consideration nowadays; father thinks that in another generation or two the ignorant and the physical care of babies may be even taught to potential mothers in our common schools, though right now there are not enough to be a potential mother's going to school.

Permeant diarrhea I explained in my last letter. When it is unusually severe or not intelligently treated at the onset it is likely to become very weak, and then the condition is called "cholera infantum" because of the aspect of the baby—sunk-ken, dried up, and wrinkled skin (all from excessive loss of water) resembles that of Asiatic cholera. Another term for it is alimentary intoxication. There are 10 to 20 water stools in the day, perhaps considerable mucus ("slime") at first, perhaps greenish at first, then yellowish, then brownish, and significant in any case, the baby becomes prostrated, dull of mind, the breathing deep and sighing, the body temperature falls, and the body temperature at first there is usually fever.

Prevention. The prevention of cholera infantum is the prevention of diarrhea. The prevention of diarrhea is the prevention of cholera infantum.
The prevention of cholera infantum is the prevention of diarrhea. The prevention of diarrhea is the prevention of cholera infantum. The prevention of cholera infantum is the prevention of diarrhea. The prevention of diarrhea is the prevention of cholera infantum. The prevention of cholera infantum is the prevention of diarrhea. The prevention of diarrhea is the prevention of cholera infantum.

"I'm used to hoot-owls and whippoorwills, but I have never heard anything more than half a hoot or a whop before even these things began to sound different.

The current of the river kept knocking at the big rock at the up end of the pool, and you began to think that things were reaching for you out of the dark. I had given up on the idea of a ghost, but I got so that I didn't want to move. I felt safest sitting still.

When I began to hear things that I didn't suppose were making a noise at all. It may be it was rabbits in the bush. I nearly died when I heard a cry about fifty yards away. I saw a man standing in the place of the river. I guess a ferret had got a rabbit. You know how a rabbit cries like a baby.

I was sitting in the open, and I thought I'd better if I got my back up against something. So I crawled over to some bushes and sat down behind them.

It had been there half an hour, feeling very sorry and uncomfortable, when I heard a regular yell. There was a man standing in the place of the river. I guess a ferret had got a rabbit. You know how a rabbit cries like a baby.

ney's strange animation and strength. Shortly after 10 o'clock the noise ceased. I heard a faint, but it came in with a fresh log for the fire. The wind had been increasing in volume, sound and power. I was thinking of leaving.

"Sit a while longer, doctor," Mr. Sidney urged. "I shall be the better for some other night. This is the sort of night we like to sit up to enjoy. Esthetically one ought to take the most of such a night."

Jed went out and immediately came in again with two bottles of wine. "What are we drinking tonight, Jed?" Mr. Sidney asked.

"I thought the doctor suggested a warm wine," said Jed.

"I think it does," said Mr. Sidney. "There is a body and a live soul in sherry."

"But certainly," I suggested, in alarm, "you will not drink sherry."

WHEN A MAN'S MARRIED

BILLY WHISKERS

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

When Billy Jr. heard Mr. Windless tell him to the man from the west he barked. "I'm afraid I can't help you," said Mr. Windless. "Some day I will, but now I want to ask you questions about the west."

After a half hour's backing, switching, and jerking, the train at last moved out of the yards and started on its way for the west, with a hump, bump, bump, and clank, clank, clank. Once out of the city, it wound itself in and out among the hills and across country like a huge, brown snake.

In this way they traveled for a couple of days. They enjoyed the scenery of the Horse Shoe Bend in the Allegheny mountains, which they crossed, and they both speculated on what would become of them if the train rolled from the track in rounding the curve and landed them at the foot of the mountain thousands of feet below. Through the slits of the car that had been left open they could see the country through which they were passing, and old Billy, looking and looking until cinders got in their eyes and they grew too tired to stand still.

of sight. The man led Billy Jr. to the depot, and there he was put into a freight car with the westerner's horse, Star.

"Hello, Mr. Billy Jr. Glad I am to have you as a companion. You did not expect to have such good luck as this when last I saw you. You will find this being walking all to, because."

"It certainly does," answered Billy Jr. "The piece of luck is beyond my greatest expectations."

Just then the train gave a jerk forward and stopped. Billy Jr. was so unexpected, and bumped Star's nose against the end of the car.

"Well, I never!" said Billy Jr. "This is worse than the rocking of a vessel for knocking one around."

Yes, and the worst of it is you can never tell when it is coming. If one only could, he might brace himself for it and not get hurt," said Star. "I hear you have traveled a good deal by water and that you

My Town Adventures

In Franklin, Shen Hogue

Chick—that wasn't his real name, but that was what the circus crowd called him, because he was little and had a habit of clucking like a hen, which pleased him. He had been jumping over the ground behind the Big Top when some of the side-shows freaks came into view, on their way to the tent.

The living Skeleton wabbling with his legs all abroad like a newborn calf, the Legless Wonder was being wheeled in a chair while the crowd was gawped by two attendants or keepers. The Bearded Lady and the Dog-Faced Boy were the only ones of the whole group who seemed to have normal strength.

All the merriment died out of Chick's face and he hurried up to the Human Beapole to lend a helping hand.

When the Freaks had all reached their places, Chick turned and said: "Father's been in touch with about every railroad man in the country," he said. "It's all fixed. If we can get a letter from the mayor of the town where we live, we'll have it all set up."

"How can they hear being stared at?" You hear the Rubes say. "Why do your people let them stare in the circus? And some wise will answer that it's because they get paid a lot. They don't and, even if they did, a good many of them wouldn't care, for they're not living."

"No, sir, freaks like being in the circus because they get more consideration and kind of feeling from the crowd. They're not living, but they're not dead either. They're in between."

Chick was the guest of the railroad men. The greatest railroad system in the world in behind us. Say what you like—when there's a big thing to be done you can't get on the big fellows to back it up. That's Railroad Spirit, the spirit that has run tracks from Hudson's Bay to the reefs of Florida, and lays a steel road to the lumberman's shack as readily as to a million-dollar plant. I tell you—I'm proud I'm going to be a railroad man."

NO MISTAKING THE LANGUAGE

He was dressed stylishly and he walked up to the railway booking office and asked for a "seaman's return."

"We only issue them to seamen, sir," was the reply.

"Why," burst forth from the other's lips, "you leather-necked, swivel-eyed son of a sea dog, if you feel my starboard boom running foul of your headlights, you'll haul in your jaw tackle a bit, and then—"

"Give him a ticket, quick, shout-out to the trainmaster. 'He's one,'" Philadelphia North American.

GRAIN

Chicago, July 12.—Fear of black rust damage to spring wheat gave a big boost today to values in the corn market. One expert sent word that some fields were badly infected and that he looked for a very serious competition to develop during the next two weeks. Forecasts of showers were taken as pointing to an increase of grain.

Provisions reflected the advance of grain. Towards the last, a big increase in the visible supply of corn brought a sharp setback in prices. The market closed weak. Pork, 100 lb. live, 10.00; 100 lb. dressed, 10.00; 100 lb. salted, 10.00; 100 lb. smoked, 10.00.
